

Winners announced of prestigious new logistics and transport awards

The Chartered Institute of Logistics and Transport Ireland (CILT)* has announced the winners of the inaugural Irish Logistics and Transport Awards, that took place at the CILT Annual Dinner in the Burlington Hotel, Dublin, last night.

The Irish Logistics and Transport Awards recognise the world-class excellence of individuals, companies, and operators in the Irish logistics and transport sector who help create and sustain a competitive edge for the Irish economy. The Awards event included a keynote address by the Minister for Education, Batt O Keeffe TD. Speaking about the evening, the CEO of CILT, Colm Holmes, said, "Last night we recognised the excellence that exists in our industry. The logistics and transport sector is playing a vital role in providing services and infrastructure that will help build towards economic recovery."

Speaking at the event, the President of CILT, Paul Mallee, called on Government to continue to support educational courses for the sector. "I would like to appeal to the Government to maintain funding for training and lifelong learning courses such as those we operate to ensure that professionals are equipped with the necessary skills for recovery.

"I am fully aware of the new financial reality, but I think that if education and the development of the Smart Economy are the priorities, then we should continue to resource the education sector to the best of our abilities."
